The Leadership through mentoring program is a practical workshop aimed at helping allied health leaders grow their leadership skills utilising mentoring as a key enabler.

Overview
This half-day professional development session will enhance Allied Health leaders’ capability to mentor, enabling them to transfer skills and knowledge throughout their organisation to improve performance.

Who should attend?
Allied Health practitioners who have formal or informal leadership roles within the organisation and are looking to develop and enhance their skills in leading and developing others through mentoring. This is not a program for potential or current mentees.

Learning outcomes:
By the end of the program participants will have:
- A greater understanding of the key principles of modern mentoring and the role mentoring can play in improving individual and team capability in organisations
- Practiced critical skills in establishing a mentoring relationship and in conducting mentoring conversations.
- Access to tools and resources to help support mentoring in practice
- Insight into strategies for overcoming common challenges in being a mentor

Facilitators
Paul Clifford and Carly Newman are Organisational Psychologists from FBG and are responsible for the design on the ongoing management of the MyALLY mentoring program for Victorian allied health practitioners
